It's Still Quite A Game

While the fact is that baseball's right to be called the national game is challenged by both football and basketball, which can claim more participants and more spectators in the course of a year, baseball is still quite a game. It was causing fighting and betting among partisan fans long before cash registers began to attest the importance of its rivals. The world series, for the championship of the world, but with only the United States contesting, is undoubtedly followed more widely and more closely than any other event in sports.

Baseball's weakness has become its professionalism—the fact that so many persons who wouldn't know a bunt from third base now follow baseball only as spectators of professional contests. For every boy who plays baseball on an organized team there are dozens who play football and basketball. In many schools, baseball has been dropped as an organized sport. Meanwhile, in hundreds of communities unable to support any kind of organized baseball there are thousands of willing spectators for football and basketball games.

That will be forgotten for the next few days as the world series is played out. Baseball's hold on popular interest is still tremendous, and it is only on second thought that anyone can wonder what will be the ultimate effect of the game's decline at the grass roots of its following.

Too Conservative?

It is typical of the national capacity for self-deception that many of us are still thinking of the Labor party's socialist triumph in British politics at the expense of evidence that something much more radical is happening in the United States.

The Russian dictatorship and Clement Attlee's new British government seem as far apart on ideological grounds as it is possible to be—much further apart than the Russians and spokesmen for our own CIO. Jay G. Hayden, writing for North American Newspaper Alliance, says British trade unions are shying away from collaboration between Russians and American CIO representatives in formation of the World Trade Union Congress, projected as a kind of supreme organization for international trade unionism. The British are openly distrustful of Russian trade unionism, as is the AFL in the United States. Both deny it is trade unionism at all; they see it as an adjunct of authoritarianism. Yet, Sidney Hillman and other American CIO officials appear to get along very well with the Russians.

Perhaps, instead of being so startled by the implications of socialism in the saddle in Great Britain, Americans should realize that British socialists are too conservative for the labor politicians who have one foot in the stirrup in the United States.

Santa Claus and Chicken Feed

As was expected, the Truman administration has come out in favor of tax reduction as a broad, general principle, in much the same way that it is in favor of Santa Claus.

Since there is no record of Congress ever having voted against tax reduction when the opportunity presented itself to carry votes by seeming to be generous to its employers, some kind of reduction beginning in 1946 is a certainty. Further than that, the prospect is vague. It is not customary, however, to be too particular about Santa Claus, on the premise that anything is better than nothing. But the fact is that the government's proposal is hardly worth considering.

The Truman administration, through Secretary of Treasury Vinson, proposes repeal of the normal tax, thus removing perhaps 12,000,000 persons from income tax lists at a time when the national debt will be approaching 300 billion dollars and the ordinary expenditures of government will be continuing to rise. However, the 12,000,000 are only nominally taxpayers; they contribute virtually nothing.

It proposes elimination of the excess profits tax on corporations, a gesture of goodwill to business enterprise. And it proposes an automatic return after next June 30 to prewar excise tax rates, wiping out wartime rates on luxury items. All told, the maximum effect of the cuts would be no more than five billion dollars, a small sum relative to the total of anticipated tax collections—and a small amount of tax relief relative to what the population must have in order to release the buying power that is the only possible source of national prosperity.

Either the Truman administration should declare plainly that in its opinion no tax relief at all is feasible under the circumstances, or it should propose enough relief to do some good. Five billion dollars one way or the other these days is chicken feed. What the country needs is a wholesale retrenchment in government spending and a tax cut of something like 20 billion dollars to give it a postwar shot in the arm.

Impatient Strikes

With public interest centered on strikes in Detroit and New York, the end of the foremen's strike at the E. F. Goodrich company in Akron, the other day attracted scant general attention. Yet the unhappy and inconclusive outcome of that walkout seems so typical of many recent strikes that a brief review of its history might be in order.

A long dispute between foremen and management over employment functions and status led some 800 Goodrich workers of the newly-organized Foremen's Association of America to petition the National Labor Relations Board to certify the F.A.A. as a collective bargaining agent. Hearings were in progress and briefs had been requested from both parties' attorneys when, on Labor day, the foremen struck.

The strike continued for 22 days. Toward the end the strikers indicated a 25-to-1 desire to go back to work in a secret-ballot poll conducted by an independent foremen's group. Joint efforts by officials of the company and the Goodrich local of the United Rubber Workers to resume production under emergency supervision also seem to have hastened the strike's end.

And what was the result? Sixteen thousand Goodrich workers were idle for 22 days. Their pay stopped. Numerous local businesses suffered in consequence. Reconversion was frozen in a large factory of one of the country's most important industries. Thousands of tires were not made—tires that the country needed for safety and efficient conduct of business.

As for the foremen's case, it is right where it was on Labor day. The N.L.R.B. has not heard all the evidence. Twenty-two days, thousands of tires and thousands of dollars are lost, and nothing has been settled.

The strikers have gone back to their jobs without penalty or impaired legal rights. If they resume their case and the N.L.R.B. certifies the foremen's group, and if the courts uphold the certification, the company will have to recognize the F.A.A. as a bargaining agent.

But it is doubtful that this strike has won the foremen any friends, or advanced the solution of an employment problem that is not confined to the Goodrich company. It has simply illustrated again the destructive effect of labor's occasionally rash impatience.

Perhaps the impatience is justified. The wheels of government labor machinery have certainly moved slowly and haltingly in the past. They should and, according to present indications, will move more swiftly and smoothly in the future. But strikes will not hasten the reform.

Participants in these impatient strikes are but a small percentage of labor. And organized labor makes up a rather small percentage of our total population. But impatient strikes hurt everybody. In time they are bound to create an unjust prejudice against labor in the nonunion public.

National prosperity is the public's concern. And needless impediments to prosperity will eventually bring public demand for strict government control of labor, if labor itself does not preach and practice a greater degree of public responsibility.

The Stars Say

For Thursday, October 4.

THE height of progress, festivity and enjoyment of this period is likely to take a sudden swerve from its happy course by an unpredictable and thrilling adventure. While the event may have a devastating quality, yet an earnest analysis of the matter with good judgment in arriving at decisions may ultimately prove sound and have far-reaching results for future security. It might be well to abstain from over-venturous or queer ideas or inclinations.

Those whose birthday it is may experience a sudden and inexplicable about-face from current enjoyable and dramatic conditions. Although this surprising visitation may be uprooting yet with keen judgment of underlying situations, in the long run there might be lasting benefits, but refrain from too radical adventures or novel tactics. Public affairs of major importance are indicated.

A child born on this day, while disposed to be radical or erratic in its ideas, yet may have a sound background and mainly good judgment.

A Troublesome Disorder, How It Is Relieved

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

PRURITUS ani, anal itching, or itching about the opening of the rectum, is a troublesome and frequent disorder. It is common in nervous and tired persons. Many persons suffer from a mild form of this disturbance for years without calling any attention to it. Others have the idea that it is a disorder they must bear, and that there is no relief for it. In severe cases, the condition may interfere with normal work.

According to Doctor Richard B. Cattell of Massachusetts, most persons with this condition can be relieved by following a simple routine.

Contributing Conditions

There are many conditions which may contribute to this itching, such as fissures or cracking in the lining membrane of the lower bowel, piles or hemorrhoids and a contracted condition of the circular muscle at the lower opening of the bowel. Certain skin disturbances due to fungus, such as ringworm, may also contribute to this disturbance. Overweight is a definite contributing cause in many instances.

The treatment which Doctor Cattell employs is designed to overcome infections, to keep the skin as dry as possible at all times and obtain immediate relief from the itching by using a preparation which has a pain-relieving action.

Twice a day the patient is instructed to bathe the parts with a warm solution of potassium permanganate. Then a preparation containing phenol or a pain-relieving drug is used in calamine lotion. This is applied as often as necessary as well as after each bowel movement and before going to bed.

Avoid Laxatives

The patients are instructed to avoid using laxative drugs. The use of toilet paper is discontinued and replaced by using moist and dry cotton. A sedative or drug which quiets the nerves is given at frequent intervals at the start of the treatment but later is discontinued.

The treatment must be carefully followed for a period of two months. In a large series of patients in whom this treatment was used, relief was obtained in nine out of ten instances.

There is a tendency for the disorder to return but the treatment, if resumed, will again overcome it.

By HAL BOYLE

SAIGON—Annamite natives who have remained faithful to their French masters during Indo-China's rebellion are paying a terrible price for their loyalty.

A majority of the native workers fled from Saigon soon after the "war for independence" began early this month.

A number of servants, however, remained loyal to French households, and these are the most frightened people in Indo-China. Some who tried to get to their quarters at night were killed. Homes of others were looted and burned.

Typical of these natives who decided to stay with the side that battered their bread in the past is "Johnny," a kitchen roustabout in the Hotel Majestic, which quartered a group of American correspondents. The hotel, standing at the edge of a river, from across which Annamese rioters fire at irregular intervals, also houses a number of British troops.

Small and dark-skinned, with short-cropped hair and gold teeth, Johnny is terribly gun-shy. Every time rifle or machine-gun fire echoed in the hotel's bare, first-floor dining room, little Johnny would start up. He almost died of panic one night when Annamese cut the power lines and the lights went off in the city's central sector.

Johnny ordinarily doesn't like to work in the kitchen after sundown, but on that night he wouldn't leave it. He insisted on rustling fresh tea for everyone who entered the dining room, and he hovered around the only burning candle like a moth. Every time a gun banged, he leaped up.

"What's the matter?" asked a British sergeant. "You afraid of your friends across the river?" Johnny nodded his head vigorously. He was fearful that if the Annamese fighters ever broke into the main part of the city they would cut his throat quicker than they would a Frenchman's.

The strike by most Annamese workers left the Continental Palace hotel, Saigon's principal hostelry, unstaffed. It was crowded with French refugees and internees, many of them homeless and all their possessions burned by the rioters.

Until a group of stranded Dutch prisoners of war volunteered to help run the hotel, the French guests had to clean their own rooms and wait on themselves.

The hotel was a center of rumor and wild reports. At night French families in the outlying areas left their homes and slept in the hotel's corridors.

Every morning brought new rumors of Annamese atrocities. A priest was reported murdered and several French families were said to have been seized as hostages. At the town hall officials listed 171 French residents as missing.

Fires the rioters started in laying waste to French property in the countryside could be seen from the roofs of Saigon's buildings. One afternoon guns began barking only two blocks from the city's main thoroughfare. Annamese and Chinese hotel servants ran to the French cathedral for sanctuary. But the French civilians ran to the hotel.

Travelers Begin Year, Plan 50th Anniversary Tuesday

Mrs. Hannah R. Maule, who has been a member of the Travelers club for 42 years, reviewed the club's history in a paper entitled, "Looking Backward," at the first meeting of the season yesterday afternoon in the library assembly room. This session marked the beginning of the club's 50th year. Its program, "The Passing Parade," covers a period from the horse and buggy days to the present. Forty-five members attended.

The Travelers will celebrate their golden anniversary with a tea from 2 to 6 p. m. next Tuesday in the Presbyterian church. Clubs invited include the Book, Leornians, the Music Study clubs, the Garden clubs and the Quota club.

Mrs. Maule's paper revealed that in 1891 a group of 24 women decided to organize a "Chautauqua Literary and Scientific circle" to study for a period of four years. When the fourth year closed the women decided to continue as a study class, choosing as their subject study, "Travel" and their name, "The Travelers Club." The first president was Mrs. Mary M. Forehope. The charter members are all deceased.

Membership Grows

In 1897 the membership had increased to 30. The enlargement of the membership made it necessary to change the meeting place from the homes to the Y.M.C.A. assembly room in the Pioneer block. Later the sessions were held in the old Chamber of Commerce rooms.

The 50th anniversary of the club was celebrated Oct. 16, 1915, with a luncheon at the home of Mrs. Annie M. Brooks, who was president of the club in 1897-99.

Dr. C. L. Smith was the main speaker when the club celebrated its 30th anniversary at the home of Mrs. Grant Woodruff.

Mrs. F. T. Miles was chairman of the committee which arranged the program for the 40th anniversary celebration at the library. All members of the program committee who had been members for 30 years or more were guests of the period of the club's organization.

Mrs. Miles, the only active charter member, was attired in a black gown and wore a large black hat topped with long black and white plumes.

On Nov. 10, 1931, the club dedicated an American red oak to the American Legion. The tree, donated by Mrs. Frank McGee, was planted in the southeast corner of the library grounds by Perry McArthur.

Mrs. Stanton Heck gave a paper on "The Silver Anniversary," which was observed on Oct. 19, 1920, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Sharp on Highland ave. There were 47 members at that meeting which included eight charter members and six past presidents.

In the first 25 years of the club there were 23 deaths and in the next 25 years there were 37 deaths, which indicates that the original group were very young women when the club was organized.

Epidemic Recalled
Mrs. Heck gave some interesting details of the typhoid fever epidemic in Salem in 1920 when the club's programs were discontinued for that season. There were hundreds of cases and many deaths during the epidemic. The National Red Cross spent around $75,000 in Salem that year and no "Passing Parade" in Salem would be complete without a reminder of the typhoid fever epidemic," she said.

The program committee composed of Mrs. Lewis P. Metzger, president, Mrs. George Bowman, Jr., and Mrs. Kenneth U. Wirtz opened the meeting with a skit, "Do You Remember?" Mrs. Percy Tucker offered a humorous paper, "People Are Funny," and Miss Mary McCarty, whose mother was a charter member, gave interesting reminiscences.

Among those from out of town were Mrs. C. L. Smith of Fayette City, Pa.; Mrs. Hiram Green of Washington, D. C. and Mrs. R. A. Lamont.

Mrs. Smith, an associate member, has been affiliated with the club for 40 years.

Seaman Cook Second Class Ralph Hannay, who has been in the Philippines since last spring, has returned to San Pedro, Calif., where he will be honorably discharged, his mother, Mrs. Clyde Anglemeyer of Columbia st., has been advised. He will come home some time this month for a visit.

Kryl All-Girl Symphony Orchestra To Appear Here Nov. 20

KRYL WOMENS SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA of Chicago

Of interest to Salem music lovers is the announcement issued by the Junior Music Study club and Musical Culture club of the scheduled appearance of Bohumir Kryl and his All Girl Symphony orchestra which has been engaged to present an evening concert Nov. 20 at the High school auditorium under auspices of the two local organizations. For the past 38 years and until the end of 1942, Kryl, the Czech conductor, has toured the country with his famous symphony band and orchestra. Since most of his orchestra personnel was called to armed services, Kryl inaugurated an innovation in 1943—an All Girl Symphony orchestra.

Making his debut with the all feminine group consisting of the finest lady concert musicians in the country last September, the orchestra at once became a sensation. Youth, charm, ability together with the personal direction of the leader, the orchestra has just completed a 23 state tour covering over 100 army camps as well as appearances at scores of college, school and civic organizations. The reception accorded this all girl's symphony orchestra was enthusiastic and spontaneous.

During the past two years Mr. Kryl found a new audience of fans, the soldiers and sailors and marines for whom he has been playing at army camps, naval stations and flying fields. All of them, he reports, like good music.

Arrangements are being made to attract one of the largest audiences ever to attend a program of this nature. Mr. Kryl will have with him outstanding soloists on his appearance here.

Soloists who will appear here with the orchestra are Miss Helen Lloyd, outstanding American violinist, Miss Martha Chilcote, coloratura soprano, and Miss Clare Wolff, harp soloist.

Program Is Presented By Baptist Women

Mrs. J. P. Hayden was in charge of a program on "Uprooted Americans" at a meeting of the Women's Missionary society of the Baptist church last night at the church.

It was interspersed with appropriate vocal solos by Mrs. Frank Grace. Others who had part were Mrs. George Foltz, Mrs. Rita Lindsay, Mrs. Florence McCollum, Miss Mary Wolcott, Mrs. R. J. Hunter and Mrs. Frank Brudery. Miss Bea Firestone contributed an accordion solo.

Mrs. L. H. Taylor led the devotions. Mrs. Reed Calkins, Mrs. David Beavans, Mrs. Wallace Bowker and Mrs. George Talbot were associate hostesses.

The society planned to have a coverdinner for the members and their husbands Nov. 6, in the church.

Signs of the time

The biggest construction program in our history is getting under way. Throughout the state "Men Working" signs are going up on telephone projects, which are the forerunners of more and better telephone service. Our postwar construction program calls for an expenditure of $100,000,000 involving 130 separate projects ranging from completely new dial exchanges and apparatus to extension of rural telephone lines.

Soon we will be installing more telephones. The Western Electric Company, the manufacturing unit of the Bell System, is making 100,000 telephone instruments a month now and is steadily stepping up production. Manufacture of more instruments and dial apparatus enables us to start filling orders long delayed because of wartime shortages. Where new buildings and extensive exchange equipment are required, it will take longer before everyone who wants it can get telephone service. But we're going ahead at full speed and in 1946 we hope to do the major part of the job of catching up with the demand for telephone service.

American Soldiers To Exhibit Handcraft

WASHINGTON—The first nationwide Army Crafts contest for GI's stationed in the United States will end up with a national exhibition at Rockefeller Center in New York from Feb. 13 to March 14, 1946.

Winners in the handicrafts contest will be selected in four classes—for originality of design, best craft techniques and materials, inventive use of improvised materials and functional value.

First prize winners will receive certificates valued at $75, second prizes $50, and third $25, which will entitle the winners to purchase rifle tools and materials through the Army Exchange Service. No restrictions are placed on the number of entries by an individual soldier, but each must have been made while he was in service. Only paintings, drawings, sculpture, prints, renderings and photography are not eligible for consideration.

Sponsored by the Special Services division, the contest will begin with the elimination competitions in each Army installation in this country. Representative works will be forwarded to Service Command headquarters, and entries shown in regional exhibitions where selections will be made for the national show in New York.

55,000 Expected At World Series Opener In Detroit Today

ATTENDANCE RECORD MAY BE SET WEATHERMAN WILLING

By SID FEDER

DETROIT, Oct. 3.—If the weather man only cooperates, the Detroit Tigers and the Chicago Cubs collide in newly-painted Briggs stadium today in the first game of the 1945 World Series, before what is likely to be an all-time record Detroit baseball crowd.

With 5,000 standing room tickets to be added daily to the snapped-up 44,000 reserved seats and 10,000 bleacher benches, the chances are all in favor of a jam-packed turnout within shouting distance of the 60,000 mark. Thus, the local series record crowd of 55,189 would not only be eclipsed, but a new all-time high in attendance here would be reached.

They gave Mr. Briggs' ball yard a special face-lifting for this party with a $30,000 coat of paint, dressing everything up for the first Cub-Tiger rally taffy pull in 10 years. If this fall frolic should go seven games, no one would be flabbergasted to see the customers kick in more than the $1,322,328.21 which made the Tigers-Reds 1940 "rassie" the richest of them all.

Lineup Unchanged

There were no last night changes in the lineup and batting order of either of the teams as they headed for the ball orchard to pry the lid off to the series that has its first three games here—today, tomorrow and Friday—then goes to Wrigley field, Chicago, to complete its run.

Lefty Hal Newhouser, the 25-game winner and most-feared finger in the American league, goes to the post for the Tigers in the opener, a 5 to 7 favorite. Opposing him, the Cubs called on Hank Borowy, the mild, likeable right-hander they bought from the Yanks as "penalty insurance" in mid-season. Hank paid off his $100,000 "premium" by winning 11 games for Chicago.

Back of Newhouser is probably the most recent ball club ever to work its way into the series, an all-over-30 lineup with Rightfielder Roy Cullenbine the baby, at 30, and Doc Cramer, in center, the "grand-pappy" at 39.

However, on the stretch of Newhouser's swift salary wing plus a five-barreled batting "cannon" that can knock the roof in on enemy elbows at any given moment, the Tigers are the betting choice to win their first world championship since they took these same Cubs just 10 years ago.

Cubs More Youthful

From Second-Sacker Eddie Mayo, hitting second, down to Rudy York, who's up sixth, only one flaker finished the campaign with a 300 batting mark—Hank Greenberg did 309 for 80 games since getting out of his soldier suit. Yet, as a group these five hammered 67 homers this year and knocked 360 runs home.

The Cubs present a fast, more youthful outfield, headed by Handy Andy Palko, probably the fanciest flycatcher to come down the pike during the war, along with pitching strength in depth and a balanced hitting power that sports three 300 hitters for 1945.

Looking for their first world title in 37 years, the Cubs boast an outer garden trio which can run off and hide from the slowest of Detroiters.

First-Baseman, Phil Cavarretta came roaring back this summer to win the National League batting crown with 355. Veteran Third-Sacker Stan Hack hit 322 and Don Johnson, a sure zippy second-baseman, wound up with 302.

Against the left-handed pitching they'll face in Newhouser and, behind him, Stumpy Stubby Overmire, they have right-hand hitting strength in Johnson, Palko, who hit in 111 runs, and slim little Peanut Lowrey, the left-fielder, who accounted for 85 of the Cub markers.

Scholastic Football Picture Thickens

BARRETTMEN BRIM-FULL FOR REVENGE OF 1944 7-6 LOSS

The tension mounts! That's the picture as Salem and Leetonia drill daily on their respective practice fields in preparation for the clash of the season at Reilly stadium at 7:45 p. m. Friday.

Under the arcs at the stadium, one of the district's most hotly contested gridiron battles is nearing the starting stage and pre-game indications are that the largest crowd of the season will be on hand to see the top-notch event.

Salem's Ben Barrett is working at the Reilly practice field with but one thought in mind, and that is to revenge a 7-6 defeat handed his 1944 squad by the Leetonia Bears, then ably coached by James L. McBride.

This season Barrett faces a new coach—Charlie Mather and consequently new tactics, but the Leetonia starting eleven will contain seven of the men who caused the 1944 reversal at Reilly stadium, which practically ruined Salem's 1944 season.

Barrett's charges this year are new, comparatively, to actual Salem-Leetonia warfare, and they will enter the game as underdogs because of their greenness.

In comparison with Leetonia's squad, Salem is sadly lacking in returning talent, but the group that Coach Barrett has rounded into coachy for this year is far from lacking in spirit, fight and the will to win.

Salem is geared for victory—that that Barrett is sure.

When the more than 6,000 fans expected jam the stadium early Friday evening a spirited, victory-bound Quaker team will take the field to face the equally determined Bears.

Salem lacks Vet Power. Salem's lineup includes only one full-time regular from last year, but several of the other lads saw a good deal of action in 1944 and are wearers of the large, red S for grid work.

In the backfield, to handle what Barrett hopes will be an atomic bomb offense, will be four men—all novices at starting a Leetonia-Salem game.

Danny Smith, quarterback so far this year and a punter who will be one of the main hinges in Leetonia's plans, will be in the line of attack.

Tortora, 142, 143, 153, 438. Tellow, 179, 147, 168, 494. Beltempo, 105, 105, 105.

DEBENZIO. The Salem line includes a pair of surprisingly good ends—John Szymczyk, 151-pound Senior and 150-pound Senior Don Chappell. Hepler, 146, 187, 159, 492. Both are tops on defense among the Quaker postmen and perform some neat blocking on offense.

Tackles are the most experienced men on the squad. Big, 163-pound Louis Juliano is the key to a rugged Salem defense. His tackles are consistent and his play diagnosing is the natural result of three solid years of varsity ball. His counterpart on the left side of the line is Lowell Myers, a Senior who weighs 165. Myers is big, fast and clever, although he hasn't yet equalled some of the other linemen on defensive powers.

Senior Jack Crawford, 145 pounds, is a talented guard and fills the right slot with effectiveness. Either Andy Parionter, a Junior at 151, or Bob Sproat, a 140-pound Junior, will be in the other guard assignment.

Barrett rates both above the balance of his guard prospects, but can give neither the edge in a man-for-man comparison. Who will start is as yet undecided, but both will see action.

Hollinger Aggressive. Morris Hollinger, lanky 150 pounds of center and a Senior, is one of the most aggressive defensive men Coach Barrett has. His charges through the line have resulted in three blocked punts this season—all eventually resulting in Salem scores.

Hollinger has shown a somewhat weak tendency on ball-passing, but on the whole his performances in whipping the oval back into the singling formation have been creditable.

Barrett's offense this week is a question. Salem has displayed both the T-formation (against Cleveland Rhodes) and the single wing (against Ravent and East Palestine).

Which of the two types will be used, or whether either will fill the bill is debatable. The Salem mentor has a tenth of a century of coaching under his belt and unquestionably has learned a bag of tricks in that time which has never been completely unveiled in Salem since he came here two seasons prior to this one.

The weights of the two teams, when compared, give Leetonia a slight edge—almost man-for-man. However, the preponderance will not be extremely in the Bears' favor and the weight matter should make little difference in the outcome.

Salem has sufficient reserve power to overcome whatever weight advantage Leetonia may possess. Leetonia is practically without qualified reserves, having only 40 men on the entire squad.

Ponderous Potters Rating High In State Grid Races

COLUMBUS, Oct. 3.—At the end of the 1944 Ohio high school football season you could have picked out Cleveland Cathedral Latin, Canton McKinley, Toledo Libbey and Columbus North and said "these are the best" without much argument.

The World Today ....

Patton not tough Enough

GENERAL TWO-GUN PATTON's transfer from command of his famous Third army, in occupation of Bavaria, is being received by the public at large with mixed feelings—relief mingled with regret that misfortune should befall a gallant soldier.

While no official reason has been given for placing the Bavarian administration in new hands, Gen. Eisenhower's move follows Patton's recent statement to the press that some Nazis should remain in office for the sake of better administration this winter. This was contrary to Eisenhower's stand for elimination of all Nazis from office in accordance with the Big Three declaration of Potsdam.

Patton made a big mistake there, but in assaying his difficulties he shouldn't overlook another error by the outspoken general. When he compared "this Nazi thing" to the "Democratic and Republican fight back home" he uttered what he himself later admitted was an "unfortunate analogy."

Now of course there are few who won't praise Patton's aim "to insure ourselves that women, children and old men will not perish from hunger or cold this winter." That surely represents the consensus of American military men in Germany, from Eisenhower down to the ranks, and it represents the sentiment of the folk back home. And we are mighty proud that this is so.

However, the Patton who thinks so fast and accurately on the battlefield erred in assuming that it was necessary or wise to keep Nazis in power to achieve this humanitarian goal. That is playing into hands of Hitler's ghost—or mayhap the Fuehrer himself.

It would be disastrous if we overlooked that the Nazi underground and the Prussian militarists are busy trying to restore the Hitlerite structure. The easiest way to assist them in reestablishing their barbaric and militaristic Germany is to leave Nazis in position of power to act as "fronts" for the underground. This has been so clear all along that the utter destruction of Nazism was made one off the chief Allied war objectives.

Another cardinal aim is to render the Reich militarily impotent by depriving it of heavy industries upon which war depends. Indeed, there is a large school which holds that Germany must be reduced to an agricultural status, with only enough light industries to meet home consumption.

Unless the Allies are prepared to see their victory over the Axis nullified, they must get tough, and stay tough, with the Germans and the Japs. It shouldn't be such a terrible trial to be stern with people who, it has been testified at the Luebenburg war crimes trial, gassed and buried 80,000 Jews to death in one night at the Belzen concentration camp. Or with the Japanese who staged the Death March of Bataan.

This doesn't mean that we are going to stand by idly and see people starve, even though they are Germans and Japs. I say this as one who has just received word that a young soldier who was a near and dear relative was starved to death by the Japs in a Borneo prison camp.

Europe is on the verge of a terrible winter. Allied experts have warned us many times that starvation will run wild in many parts of the continent, and Germany will be hard hit. Field Marshal Montgomery, chief British occupation authority in Germany, stated in London yesterday that "unless coal production can be maintained and increased, nothing can stop the economic collapse of Western Germany and a famine which would cost the Germans many lives."

not mean failure," he commented. Molotov was asked about the reported agreement early in council conferences which would have permitted all the foreign ministers to take part in the peace discussion. "You show it to me," he retorted. "Could there be such an agreement without signatures?"

Byrnes, who had not hidden his disappointment at the results of the conference, appeared optimistic that the difficulties would be resolved. He said the deputies would continue studying the work of the five-power council in such matters as were not involved directly in the writing of European peace treaties, thus correcting an impression which arose from his official statement last night that the councils work would be held in abeyance. He said he had referred to the matter of peace treaties alone.

The peace settlement, Byrnes said, "cannot be based on battleships. It must be based on justice."

The deputies, he said, would continue studying such matters as food for Austria, restitution of property stolen by the Nazis during the war and the future of the Ruhr and the Rhineland.

He said the United States considered it essential that the nations which participated fully in the war be allowed to participate fully in making the peace.

He said Soviet Foreign Commissar Molotov raised no objection in principle to his insistence that a European peace conference be called for the final drafting of each treaty, but that the Soviet minister could not discuss the proposal without a personal consultation with Marshal Stalin.
